ACADEMIC SERVICE

2023-present: Community Based-Learning (English 1A, English 7, English 1C, and English 59)

- Spring 2024: PCC 2023 Community-based Learning Faculty Fellow and recipient of the 2024 Community Excellence Grant (funded by a gift from MacKenzie Scott)
  - Students are working to support the efforts of Mujeres de la Tierra, which is a grassroots environmental equity non-profit founded in 2004, in the city of Los Angeles. Mujeres de la Tierra has the distinction of being the first Latina-founded and led 501(c)(3) environmental organization that focuses on the healing of La Madre Tierra (Mother Earth) in Southern California.
  - For their work in English 7: Inscape Magazine and English 1A: Reading and Composition, my students researched and prepared presentations and booklets that will be shared by Mujeres de la Tierra's Dia de los Muertos during their talk to educate community members on the 1943 Zoot Suit Riots (80th Anniversary). The goal for Mujeres de la Tierra is to honor the facts of history as well as honor those who were impacted by the riots and highlight how Latine youth continue to be targeted today.
  - During Spring 2024-Spring 2025, we will continue our partnership. Ms. Munoz is requesting that PCC students create a picture book to highlight local environmental heroes, so my students in English 59: Children's Literature and English 1C will work on this. We are planning for a Spring 2025 Earth Day event.
  - As part of this project, I am implementing graduate-level research on Contemplative Environmentalism and place-based community storytelling to enhance community health and connection in partnership with my colleagues, students, and community organizations during her daily work at Pasadena City College.

2021-present: Campus Mindfulness Projects

- Mindfulness Mondays: Mindful Antidotes to Burnout for the PCC Community
  - With support from the Office of Professional and Organizational Development (OPOD), I coordinated and co-led Mindfulness Mondays: Mindful Antidotes to Burnout for the PCC Community with with Suzana Pilipossian, M.A. and Dr. Jason Vasquez, PCC Lead Psychologist to:
    1. Examine definitions of workplace "burnout" from a trauma-informed, holistic perspective that includes concerns for well-being of body, mind, and spirit;
    2. Discuss the ways individual faculty and staff can prioritize their own psychosocial, emotional, and environmental well-being in the face of structural pressures; and
    3. Integrate the lessons into first-person mindfulness experiences via physical (body-based) activity that will include all-levels gentle seated and standing yogic movement, breathing, and meditation.
- 2022: Worked with PCC Library to build OER / resource page for Mindfulness, Contemplative Practices, and Trauma-Informed/Healing-Centered Practices
